‘Librarians Teaching Information Literacy’

Facilitated by Julia Bradbury of McGrath Barrett & Associates

Julia has worked with Bríd McGrath over the past 20 years, as McGrath Barrett & Associates, to provide high-quality, relevant and enjoyable training courses for the staff of libraries and information services in a wide variety of settings in Ireland.

In her full-time profession Julia is the manager of UCD Library’s Research Services, and is heavily involved in the development, promotion and support of UCD Library’s Digital Library and Institutional Repository; and other research support services including data management, bibliometrics/citation analysis and mapping services.

Julia will facilitate a workshop on information literacy including such aspects as planning a search, information sources and effective googling.

Tea, coffee and lunch will be provided. There will be an opportunity to browse and purchase books at the International Education Services stand.
